NEW YORK CHAIN STORE LEASES BUSBY BLOCK

W. T. Grant Co., Inc., To Remodel Building Occupied by Kleinmaier Bros.

Marion's development as one of the most important mercantile centers in Ohio was given additional impetus today with the announcement that W. T. Grant Co., Inc., of New York City, one of the largest chain store organizations in the country, has leased the Busby building at 149-151 W. Center st., now occupied by the clothing business of Kleinmaier Bros., where it will begin operations April 1, 1929, the date that the lease takes effect.

The Grant corporation will also take possession of the two-story brick building on Prospect st. at the rear of the Kleinmaier store, which will be included in an extensive remodelling program to be started as soon as the lease goes into effect. Approximately $30,000 will be spent in improving and reconstructing the two buildings, it is announced. The first floor of the Prospect st. building is now occupied by the James Manzo shoe repair shop and the James Rizzo barber shop while the second floor consists of residence apartments.

30 Year Lease

Both the Busby Block and the building at the rear are owned by Henry A. True and the lease was negotiated by his agent, E. L. Busn. The lease covers a period of 30 years.

While definite plans have not been announced by the Grant Company, it is known that the basement and ground floor of the two buildings, which are to be converted into one structure, will be used for the store, which will market merchandise selling at 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.

The second and third floors are to be remodelled for use as offices. A third floor is to be added to the two-story building on Prospect st., according to preliminary plans.

As the lease of Kleinmaier Bros. on the Busby block will not expire until April 1, 1929, no steps have been taken by the firm to obtain a new location. The Kleinmaier store has operated in the Busby block during the last [illegible] years and prior to that time the building was occupied by the Frank [illegible] store that concern being the [illegible]

Prosperity Is the Issue

Good citizens who go to the polls next Tuesday ought to face the facts.

And outstanding above all other facts is this: The issue in this election is the issue of prosperity for the United States of America.

Prohibition is not the issue. It has been discussed and discussed seriously in many quarters. Very probably it will be discussed much further—but it is not the real issue now.

The issue is prosperity—prosperity for us all, the working man, the employer, men, women and children. We have prosperity in the United States today. How is it to be maintained and more firmly established?

Prosperity is to be maintained and more firmly established by loyal support of President Coolidge and the national administration.

European bankers—and some American bankers have joined with them—have issued a manifesto in which they glorify free trade and express their dislike of the protective tariff.

Europe may have all the free trade she desires. We in America understand the source of our prosperity. The source of our healthy, happy industrial condition is the protective tariff.

It is the protective tariff which keeps millions of men and women well paid, in industrial work. It is the protective tariff which has made this nation industrially great. It is the protective tariff which will keep it great.

It is extremely important that voters face the facts, and realize the issue.

It is extremely important that James R. Hopley be elected to the National House of Representatives and Frank B. Willis be returned to the National Senate.

These men are upholding the hand of the President. These men are protecting the main source of our prosperity.

The issue is prosperity.

Daily Proverb—"In time of affliction a vow, in time of prosperity an inundation of wickedness."

Are you going to vote tomorrow or swell the ranks of the majority?

A lot of people will be sad of heart tomorrow night who in all probability would be glad were they but able to see into the future.

Let us hope for the best, but the outlook is that tomorrow's election will be another demonstration that our officials are pretty generally minority selections.

Since reading that the freight rates on cheese have been made a political issue up in Wisconsin, we've been wondering why some bright mind hasn't thought of forcing the railroads to put a prohibitory rate on spinach.

About the only way we can explain the unusual publicity given the Hall-Mills case is that news must be mighty dull in New Brunswick, New Jersey.

If dryness resulted in the prices for liquid delight it brings over here, we can well understand why Norway voted wet. Nobody ever accused the Norwegians of lacking a spirit of thrift.

There have been campaigns and campaigns, but we are unable to recall one in which old General Apathy was so consistently conspicuous throughout.

An exchange says that there is an average of one murder in this country every forty-eight minutes, but we guess it doesn't count those of Chicago gangsters.

The New Jersey idea of trying criminals first in the newspapers may complicate the matter of getting a jury a bit, but it certainly gives the accused a splendid tip on what he will be required to combat at his trial.

The most remarkable phase of the fact that this country already this year has exported $5,000,000 worth of liquid shoe polish is that we can't think of any other land which has a Volstead law.

Myers Y. Cooper Tonight.

Announcement has been made that Marion is to have as a distinguished visitor Myers Y. Cooper, of Cincinnati, who is to make the closing address of his campaign as the Republican candidate for governor of Ohio at the Star auditorium, this evening. We can not recall any previous occasion when a gubernatorial candidate did Marion the honor of choosing this city for the closing of his campaign. The announcement should, and doubtless will, assure a capacity audience to hear Mr. Cooper's discussion of the issues of the campaign.

We are not sufficiently intimate with Mr. Cooper's plans to know just what he will have to say, but we do know that he comes to us as a business man who has pledged the voters throughout the state that, if elected, he will supplant the present political administration which has led to the colossal extravagances of the past four year with a business administration which will be in line with the same good business principles and employ the tried and tested business policies which have brought him marked success in his personal business affairs. We know, also, that he comes as one who has pledged the people of Ohio that, by rigorous economy, he will put the financial affairs of the state upon a sound basis, and that, to our way of thinking, is a pledge which is going to prove hard of accomplishment, for it is no easy undertaking to substitute real business principles and policies for those under which an actual treasury balance of $11,[illegible] has been dissipated in four years and an indebtedness of over $1,[illegible] incurred, for the payment of which there are no funds at hand. That the Republican candidate appreciates the magnitude of the undertaking is manifest from his speech in Norwood, Saturday [illegible] which he said:

"The latest check [illegible] the state auditor's office showed that on October 7, the operating funds of the state were overdrawn by $1,661,626.9[illegible], and it was only by borrowing money that the state has been [illegible] at the present time to meet ordinary running expenses. This is in spite of the fact that only a few weeks ago insurance corporations paid $[illegible] in advance taxes to save the state from bankruptcy.

"I will have the hardest task ever faced by a governor, for in addition to checking expenditures to make the state live within its income, I will have to pay off several million dollars in debts contracted by the present administration."

If the Republican candidate speaks to his Marion audience tonight as he has to those he has addressed in other parts of the state, the facts which he will present concerning the condition of the state's finances should prove interesting to all, even though they be disturbing. We should know how our affairs are being handled. It will be interesting to know a successful business man's analysis of our financial condition, not as it is in theory, but as it really exists. And we can trust to Myers Y. Coop[illegible] [illegible] that.

Are You for Good Government?

In tomorrow's election two facts should be kept in mind by the voters in casting their ballots on the proposed amendment to the constitution of the state seeking to a change in the present primary law. One is that the proposed amendment does not do away with the primary but empowers the general assembly of Ohio to enact a law providing that all nominations for elective state, district, county, township and municipal offices and for United States senator may be made in conventions, the delegates to which must be chosen by direct vote of the people at primaries. The second fact to be remembered is that the proposed amendment is not a partisan measure. It has friends and enemies alike in both of the old parties. Some of its notable champions are in one party, some in the other, and this is true also of its foes, nor have party lines been drawn in its treatment by the press. Generally speaking, it has the support of the champions of and believers in the two-party form of government under which our government has thrived almost from its organization. Opposition to it is found largely among those who believe in government by blocs, by minorities; those who are moved by selfish interests rather than the common good of all; those whose policy is one of obstruction rather than construction, and those who do not believe in any government at all. To the these classes in opposition the present primary law has proved an ally.

That the proposal, should it pass, will not do away with the primary is made evident by its text, which reads:

ARTICLE V.

Section 7. All nominations for elective state, district, county, township and municipal officers, and for United States senator, shall be made in such manner and by such method as may be provided by law, but the right to be nominated by petition shall be preserved, and all delegates to all political conventions shall be chosen by direct vote of the electors.

Section 8. All delegates from this state to the national conventions of political parties shall be chosen by direct vote of the electors. Each candidate for such delegate shall state his first and second choices for the presidency, which preferences shall be printed upon the primary ballot below the name of such candidate, but the name of no candidate for the presidency shall be so used without his written authority.

Told in a way understandable by all, the proposal simply looks to the return to the system of nominating candidates by conventions, the delegates to which must be chosen at primaries.

Under the present system, interest in elections has fallen to such a stage that, aside from presidential years, candidates are placed in nomination by less than ten per cent of the voters. In presidential years about fifty per cent. of those entitled to vote go to the polls, but in the intervening years, the average vote cast the country over is not in excess of twenty-five per cent. If the two old parties are about evenly divided, but half this per cent. has voted for each of the opposing nominees, and each of these nominees is chosen by a mere majority of the party strength at the primary, which possibly is as low as seven per cent. of the electorate.

The present system has done away with the getting together of the parties in their respective councils. It does not offer opportunity to hold council looking to the selection of the best man for each respective place. It's a free-for-all without regard to character or fitness, and it has worked to cause such disgust on the part of the electorate that voters refuse to go to the polls.

If our present form of government is to survive, it must have the support and hold the interest of the voters. The smaller the number of those who take an interest in elections, the more easily are such elections controlled by political interests and corporation and other interests working through such political interests. As interest in elections has dropped throughout the land, the cost of government has gone up, not gone up merely in step with the increased cost of commodities and the cost of living, but gone up out of all proportion to them. The primary system thus not only is unnecessarily costly to those who may seek office, but also works hardship to all the people in that it gives them servants less efficient in office than under the old system, and also greases the ways for the plundering of the people's pockets.

A vote for the amendment of the present primary law is a vote for majority government—a vote for "government of the people, by the people, for the people." A vote against the proposed amendment is a vote for minority government—a vote for government by and in aid and support of special interests and blocs.

If we get the force of General Andrews' remarks, there is far too much preachment and far too little practice on the part of too many of the so-called friends of Mr. Volstead's measure looking to the improvement and happiness of mankind.

A lot of trouble would be obviated in this old world of ours if all men showed the wisdom of the London telepathist who has selected for his affinity a fair maid of Mars.

Avoid Gall-Stones by Right Living.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Outside of the simple ailments of mankind we hear more about gall-stones than of almost any other trouble. Hardly a day passes, but we read about some prominent persons who have been operated upon for the removal of gall-stones.

The gall bladder is a pear-shaped and pear-sized body, closely associated with and attached to the liver. The narrow end tapers off into a tube or duct, called the cystic duct. The drainage tube of the liver and the cystic duct join, forming another and larger passageway, called the bile duct or the common duct. This opens into the intestinal tract.

It will be seen that the discharges from the liver and the gall bladder flow into the common duct and in a common mixture reach the intestines. Likewise, anything passing from the intestines up the common duct may pass into the liver, or switch off through the cystic duct into the gall bladder.

The bile in the gall bladder offers an ideal home for the growth of germs. It has the fluid contents, the warmth and the darkness, til the conditions favorable for the multiplication of germs.

Not only is the gall bladder an ideal place in theory, but as a matter of fact germs do reach this friendly location. The pus germs, the germs of pneumonia, of dysentery, of typhoid—all or any of these may be found in diseased gall bladders.

The bile is composed of several ingredients, including one which the scientists call "cholesterin." This appears like fine granulated sugar—it is white and glistening and is found in crystals.

Cholesterin is taken from the blood and if the liver and gall bladder are in normal condition, the quantity is a matter of no concern. But if the gall bladder is irritated or disturbed, it becomes congested. That is, more than the required amount of blood is called there.

Long continued congestion is but the first step towards inflammation. This means still more blood is crowded into the vessels of the gall bladder. All the time cholesterin is being taken from the blood. The more blood there is the more cholesterin.

You know that happens if you have a bottle containing a strong brine or a strong sugar solution—some of the salt or sugar deposits on the cork and neck of the bottle. The same thing occurs in inflammation of the gall bladder. The excessive quantities of cholesterin deposit around any rough or convenient core. A germ or group of germs offer a splendid center or nucleus for the accumulation of cholesterin. More layers are added until the mass is like a grain of sand. More and more layers cause its growth until there is a small stone and after a while a large one.

There may be just one gall-stone, but if the conditions are favorable for the development of one it is quite probable there will be others. Sometimes there are hundreds of them, or even thousands of small stones.

You need not be a doctor to see what a favorable place this region is for the collection of such substances. The narrow neck of the gall bladder, the thin duct, its union with the duct from the liver and then a narrow tube several inches long through which these material substances must pass to get into the intestine, [illegible] drainage system as complicated as this would be likely to be "stopped up" most of the time.

Gallstones [illegible] in persons past middle-life. Half the cases occur at or after forty and almost never are they seen under twenty-five.

Sleeping [illegible], laziness, lack of exercise, overeating, [illegible], worry—all these predispose to this [illegible]. Right living will help you to avoid gall-stones, as it does to ward off most diseases.

I must stand by and hear the speeches, backed

Q. Why do flies gather on screen doors before a storm? S. L.

A. The weather bureau says that an approaching storm is marked by increasing humidity and, often, lower temperature, owing largely to cloudiness. On such occasions house flies gather about screen doors and windows from the outside, if there is a fire or other source of heat inside the room. This is especially noticeable in the late summer and early fall.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, Nov. 1—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and heard loud cries in the street and three women were fighting and a policeman said the ruckus was about a man, who in gallant fashion fled! Nor did I blame him. So to breakfast and helped thrice to butter cakes and syrup.

Home and Mike Hogg came and we sent a scurrilous cable to his brother Will and Irvin Cobb who are motoring in Europe and later Grace Sinclair Lewis, Maude Parker Child and some others dropped in and all right merry.

To dine with my wife and asked a waitress to remove a glass of water to make room for a dish and she said this was against a rule so I put it on the floor and a woman passed and kicked it over and I had to pay twenty cents for the broken tumbler. Then home to bed.

About twelve years ago he was eddied into a New York editorial room—a "dose and dose" youngster, thinly-clad and obviously undernourished. He answered the desk's bawling of "copy boy" with agility. One day he was the target for an unintentional scurvy trick all regretted.

He was sent to the composing room for a "bucket of editorials" and a foreman obligingly heaped a pail with lead linotype slugs. In dragging his load back he strained a tendon and was laid up for several weeks.

Several of the staff went to see him and found him living in squalor on the outskirts of Brooklyn. He returned to work a little abashed, but entirely forgiving and became known along the outer rim of the copy desk as "Rags."

Then in the manner of office boys he suddenly vanished and was forgotten. He moved northward to the theatrical offices of Broadway. Today "Rags" has produced two fairly successful plays. He is well fixed and popular.

People usually say such success stories are "old stuff." They are. So are hurricanes, earthquakes, murder and scandalous divorces. Yet somehow I think the story of "Rags" and his prototypes are far more entertaining.

In those dim lit lodging-houses with upstairs offices along the Bowery there is oppressive silence. Men sit at the street windows for hours without exchanging a word. On the walls are often signs suggesting guests do not care for conversation. Most of the patrons are men who have failed. They have buried the past along with their hopes and want to be alone with their thoughts. To the clerk they are mere numbers corresponding with the numbers of the rooms they occupy. Strangely enough I am told the guests do not want light. They undress for bed in the dark. Rarely do they receive mail or a telephone call. At dawn they shuffle out in search of work or to jobs they have secured and a night they return to sit silently at the windows, puff pipes—and stare.—Copyright, 1926.

Today's Worst Story.

BY WILL ROGERS

Generally the worst story that I hear has an Irishman and a Scotchman and a Jew in it, but in this case it's an American boy and an Italian boy and a Jewish boy. They was all playing marbles by the side of a bank on Woodland avenue, in Cleveland, maybe it was. And somebody dropped a quarter as he left the bank and never stopped to pick it up. Now I realize that this here is a pretty improbable story, because my best information from Woodland avenue in Cleveland is that nobody ever dropped a quarter and let it lay there. But anyway, that's the story.

A priest was comming along and he heard the boys a-fighting about the quarter. They were laying it on pretty thick, and the priest says to them:

"Here, you boys, let me hold the quarter till I can decide who gets it. Whoever answers my questions the best will get the quarter. Now this here American boy, can you tell me who was the greatest man in history?"

"George Washington," he says.

"Pretty good. It'll be hard to beat that. You, Tony, what do you say? Who was the greatest mere man in history?"

"Columbus!" says the Italian, right smart.

"Well, that mighty good. Looks like you might win the quarter yet."

Then he asked the Jewish lad, and he says: "St. Patrick, of course, was the greatest one of all."

Father Flynn was astonished a good deal, and he gave this kid the quarter, and then he asks him:

"But how in the world did you know that St. Patrick was such a great man?"

"Well," the boy Isaac says, "I knowed well enough it ought to be Moses, but business is business."—Copyright, 1926.

HOLLOWE'EN PASSES IN COMPARATIVE PEACE HERE

Hallowe'en, scheduled for observance Saturday night, passed in comparative peace and with no serious damage to property here, Chief of Police Thompson stated today. Youngsters who started out celebrating the event about two weeks in advance and who did considerable damage during these early depredations, apparently suspended activities when the day actually set for the annual observance arrived, the chief states.

Up until a few days before Hallowe'en, police received numerous complaints from various sections of the city. The chief believes that warnings issued by his department and published following the first trouble-making had a beneficial effect.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste", a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.—Adv.

WORKERS START CAMPAIGN FOR $5,000 TODAY

Earnest Appeal in Behalf of Movement Made by Salvation Army Official

Workers today launched their campaign in the $5,000 Salvation Army Maintenance Appeal under the direction of J. W. Llewellyn, chairman. It is expected that the entire city will be completely canvassed by teams of workers composed of both men and women during the campaign which is to continue until next Saturday.

An earnest appeal was made in behalf of the work by Mr. Llewellyn in discussing the campaign this morning. "The value of a Salvation Army Corps in any community cannot be computed in dollars and cents," he said. "Few laymen I think realize the tremendous scope and power for good of the Salvation Army throughout the world. Its activities are carried on in 79 countries and the Gospel preached in 53 languages. It maintains hospitals, maternity homes, children's homes, day nurseries, working men's hotels, Eventide homes for the aged, employment bureaus, immigration and relief departments, welfare work among prisoners, both those behind the bars and on parole, and it also operates industrial homes where waste material is redeemed into useful material and many a homeless man himself reconstructed in the process. The secret, it seems to me, of the wide scope and success of Salvation army work today lies in that human touch in all its ministrations and the sincerity of its religious convictions. Here in our midst it is doing a splendid service not handled by any other organization and the committee of Marion citizens in charge of this campaign earnestly requests the cooperation of every citizen of the community.

HEADACHE, COLDS, COSTIVE BOWELS, TAKE "CASCARETS"

To-night! Clean your bowels and end Headaches, Colds, Sour Stomach

Get a 10-cent box now.

You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, bad taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have a bad cold.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep the stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular, and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.—Adv.

PREPARATIONS COMPLETED AS ELECTION NEARS

Polls Will Open at 6:30 O'Clock Tuesday Morning and Close at 6:30

Final preparations for election Tuesday were under way today at the office of the County Board of Elections on E. Center-st. Tonight at 7 o'clock clerks and judges will meet in the 72 precincts of the county and elect presiding judges, who will then receive poll books and other supplies at the board's headquarters.

Polls will open at 6:30 Tuesday morning and close at 6:30 p. m. Election board officials today urged voters to cast their ballots as early in the day as possible in order to lessen congestion at the polls during the final hours. Local manufacturing concerns, it is stated, will cease operations an hour earlier than usual in order to give their employes ample opportunity for voting.

Booths Open

Today all of the city precinct booths are open from 4 until 8 o'clock for the registration of voters who were unable to register on Oct. 15 and 16, the days originally designated for that purpose. This privilege is being granted to those who were out of the city on the two registration days or have other satisfactory excuses for not having qualified for voting.

Receipt of absent voters' ballots came to an end at the Board of Elections office at 10 o'clock Saturday night. A total of 290 of these ballots was cast. This is less than half of the number received two years ago but nevertheless is regarded as the average for a state election. The total was exceptionally high in 1924 due to the fact that it was a presidential year. Last year, when city officials were elected, the absentee ballots totalled only 112.

Scioto Marsh Still Holds Place Among Onion Flats

Kenton, Nov. 1—Owing to the adverse weather conditions throughout the country this year, the Scioto marsh west of here still holds her own as one of the greatest onion producing centers in the world, a survey shows.

Practically all the larger onion producing areas suffered as the result of the continued rainy season and the heavy winds earlier in the season which blew much of the seed from the ground.

Foreign seed was distributed throughout the country last Spring by an Eastern firm, resulting in the loss of many thousands of dollars. The onions produced were of the flat variety, probably imported from Holland they are unsalable in this country.

It is reported that several onion raisers will be granted a rebate by the Eastern firm on their seed next spring.

Because of the available space in the huge onion storages on the Scioto marsh several cars of onions from the Indiana and Michigan fields have been unloaded and stored here.

GALION HIGH LOSES TO SANDUSKY OUTFIT

Orange Defense Weakens Before Onslaught of Husky Aggregation

Galion, Nov. 1—Galion High school's Orangemen again were decisively defeated Friday by the tricky Sandusky aggregation by a score of 35 to 6. Coach Eaton sent his reserves in at the start and although handicapped by inexperience they made a fine showing, holding the first string Sandusky huskies until the last few minutes of the first quarter. Then Galion's splendid defense gave way before their heavier opponents and the goal line was crossed as the period ended.

During the second quarter the regulars were sent in to battle for the Orange and Blue and made the only score of the game for G. H. S. when Capt. Cutshall blocked a punt and raced for a touchdown.

The remainder of the game was easy for Sandusky. Resorting to a passing attack they completely outplayed the Galionites who seemed to have great difficulty in keeping the ball located. Three touchdowns were soon registered as a result.

It was not until the last quarter that the Orangemen again took hold, but all efforts to outwit the lads from the Bay City were unsuccessful and the game ended with the ball in Galion's possession on Sandusky's twenty yard line.

Next week the Crawford county gridders meet Delaware in an N. C. O. L. tilt at Heise field and fans are hoping for a return of the fighting spirit that predominated earlier in the season.

MONEY FORWARDED FOR GIRL'S JOURNEY HOME

Expect Final Disposition of Case To Be Made Today

While no definite decision had been reached by Juvenile Judge L. B. McNeal at noon today, it is probable that the 13-year-old girl arrested here last week in company with Merrel Madison, 19, of Warsaw, N. Y., following their elopement several months ago and their subsequent tour through several states, will be returned to her home in Warsaw. The girl's father has forwarded money to pay the expense of her trip home together with instructions to authorities regarding railway connections. GALION SCOUTS HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICE SUNDAY

Attorney Carl J. Gugler Gives Principal Address; High School Band Plays

Galion, Nov. 1—Boy Scouts of Galion held an impressive memorial service Sunday afternoon honoring a former president and enthusiast of the Boy Scout movement, Theodore Roosevelt. The program was presented at 2:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the Junior High school and was well attended by interested citizens. Ministers of the city assisted with the devotionals and the high school band supplied fitting music for all the special events. Attorney Carl J. Gugler gave the principal address and spoke at length on the high ideals and noble character of the honored president and also of the great spirit of the wonderful organization represented.

Following the program a tree was planted on the campus which will be placarded as the "Roosevelt Tree."

All those present were well pleased with the manner in which the exercises were given and the spirit and patriotism which the Scouts displayed. Galion has tried for many years to organize really efficient troops but has failed each time. Now that the churches are supporting the movement and the right type of leaders have been secured boys of scout age are much interested, and from the many activities which have been undertaken lately, success is this time assured.

ASHLEY HIGH SCHOOL HOLDS ANNUAL PARTY

Auditorium Transformed into Veritable Witches' Camp for Occasion

Ashley, Nov. 1—Amid a wealth of Hallowe'en decorations which transformed the auditorium of the Ashely school into a veritable witches' camp, the students of the high school celebrated with their annual Hallowe'en party. The time was spent in costume review, games and stunts.

The prizes were awarded to Miss Gwendolyn Dennis, for the prettiest costume; to Miss Ida May Osborn for the most original costume and to Martin Smith for the most unrecognizable costume. The awarding of these prizes was a most difficult task for the judges, D. Glass of Ohio State University, Miss Lucille Riley of Delaware, and Miss Winifred Raines. Mrs. Charles Morrow of Columbus played the march for the grand review parade.

Refreshments of pumpkin pie, doughnuts and cider were served. The doughnuts were baked by the domestic science class.

The high school attendance numbered about 140 while the gallery displayed the largest number of spectators present at an affair of this kind.

Are You Driving Too Hard?

Overstrain Often Disturbs Bodily Functions

HURRY, worry and overwork throw a heavy strain on the bodily machinery. The eliminative organs, especially the kidneys, are apt to be overtaxed and become sluggish. Retention of excess uric acid and other poisonous waste is believed to give rise to a dull, tired feeling and, often, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is sometimes shown by burning or scanty passages. More and more people are learning to assist their kidneys at such times by the use of Doan's Pills, a tested stimulant diuretic. Users everywhere endorse Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

THE SECRET OF MY FLAKY, TENDER

pie crust

I CONFESS I have always been rather proud of my pie crust. But recently I have found a way to make my pastry "shorter," flakier and more tender than ever before.

The secret is in the shortening I use. Since I changed to Crisco I wouldn't think of using any other cooking fat.

I am sure if you will try Crisco in the following recipe for plain pastry, you too will never return to your former old-fashioned shortening with its uncertain results.

Winifred S. Carter

Plain Pastry

2 cups flour
1¼ teaspoons salt
¾ cup Crisco
Ice water

Mix and sift flour and salt. Cut in the Crisco with a knife. Add only water enough to hold the ingredients together. Do not knead. Chill thoroughly. Divide dough in two parts and roll out thin on a slightly floured board. Line a pie pan with one-half the pastry. Pinch pastry with the fingers to make a fancy edge and prick bottom and sides with a fork. Bake in a very hot oven (460 degrees F.) 10 to 15 minutes. For a 2 crust pie, line pie pan with pastry, put in a filling, cover with top crust, trim and press edges together. Prick top to allow steam to escape. Bake in a quick oven (425 degrees F.) 10 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate oven (325 degrees F.) and bake 20 minutes.

If a less rich pastry is desired, use only ½ cup Crisco.

TWO DIFFERENT AND DELICIOUS PIES

Chocolate Cream Pie

2 tablespoons Crisco
6 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
2 egg whites
Baked pie shell

Melt Crisco. Add flour, milk, chocolate (cut in pieces), sugar and salt, and bring slowly to the boiling point, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Remove from the fire and add beaten egg yolks and vanilla. Pour into a baked pie shell (see Plain Pastry). Cover with a meringue made by beating the confectioners' sugar into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F.) 15 minutes or until a delicate brown.

Whipped cream may be used instead of the meringue.

Pineapple Pie

½ cup flour
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup pineapple juice
1 cup hot water
1 tablespoon Crisco
2 cups cooked or canned pineapple, cut in small pieces
3 egg yolks
3 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
3 egg whites
Baked pie shell

Mix flour, sugar and salt together. Add the pineapple juice and water and bring slowly to the boiling point, stirring constantly. Cook 15 minutes over hot water. Remove from fire, add Crisco and well drained pineapple. Pour this mixture on the beaten egg yolks and mix well. Pour the filling into a baked pie shell (see Plain Pastry). Cover with a meringue made by beating the confectioners' sugar into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F.) 15 minutes or until a delicate brown.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

AFTER reporting the interview to Roberta on their way home, Piggy said with a chuckle: "He looked me over and quizzed me to his heart's content and didn't tumble. So that's all right. Nobody's going to suspect us now."

His chuckles deepened into laughter when Janet gave them her account of the invasion of their domestic sanctuary.

"Bully," he exclaimed. "They've swept and sifted us. We're safe."

Celia, whom he now saw for the first time since bandaging her ankle the night before, looked up at him with a tremulous smile from the couch where she was lying.

"Thanks to you! I don't know how I can ever thank—"

"Oh, rats!" Piggy interrupted, grinning at her. "Forget it! I've had the time of my life. Anyhow, you'd [illegible] there yet, if it hadn't been for Bob. It was her scheme. I didn't know a [illegible] would scare them silly—and I never would have thought of those [illegible] in a million years!" He chortled joyously. "If you're so chock full of gratitude that you can't hold it, spill it on Bob. She's responsible."

Roberta shook her head. "No, Peter, you're the hero of this little tale," she said lightly, but with the mysterious [illegible] that always set his heart [illegible] and gave him an [illegible] and otherwise unprecedented desire to [illegible] her. "I may have thought of the [illegible], but you found them. You've done everything. I owe you a lot besides money," she added, more seriously, "and there must be a lot of that."

"Oh, not so much. I've still got some left and the worst's over. All we have to do now is to sit tight until the tumult and the shouting dies. The rest's easy."

Whereupon he failed to account of several gathering forces, among them Clifford Nixon's recurrent memory of an elusive but haunting resemblance, the widespreading ripple from a pebble of gossip carelessly thrown, and the power of the press.

The last of these was the first to manifest itself, for Nixon's assiduity in spreading the news of Celia's abduction among the peace officers of a dozen towns became known, and Scott's prominence as a wealthy manufacturer multiplied the news value of the story. Consequently Boston reporters appeared upon the scene before night, and their New York brethren flocked in a few hours later, all sharp set to pounce upon every clue.

Scott locked the gates and loosed his dogs, conducting all business by telephone. The only persons admitted to the Birchwood grounds, and these only after submitting credentials to the gardener, were detectives summoned from New York, all of whom, to their intense disgust, were forbidden to disclose to newspaper men any knowledge they might have of the case, on pain of instant annihilation. In vain they argued that publicity might lead to important information. Scott was obdurate. He had no stomach for public announcement of previous trouble with his family and his elder daughter's [illegible] Nixon's [illegible] the Jaffrey [illegible] interviews.

[illegible] reporter gleaned what [illegible] could hear [illegible] that was known and much that was surmised concerning Roberta's [illegible] independence and subsequent disappearance. The next day, [illegible] papers in both cities [illegible] a breach in Scott's [illegible] alleged details of [illegible] in headlines [illegible] sensational sheets. [illegible] of the exile's presence [illegible] leaked out [illegible] to be in Paris.

The sheriff at Fitzwilliam, bound by no [illegible] of secrecy [illegible] it was a darn shame [illegible] Scott [illegible] that poor, forlorn little woman just because she happened to be a stranger. Anybody could see that she and her help were nice, quiet, respectable folks. He wouldn't blame her a bit if she packed up and left, after a thing like this. Fitzwilliam, agreeing with him, naturally talked. As a result, reporters in livery buggies sped through the woods to swarm at Fitzwilliam seeking interviews, and it devolved upon Janet and Piggy to hold them at bay. Mrs. Smith, prostrated by this distressing publicity, was said to be confined to her bed.

As far as possible, Peter Brown also kept in the background, fearing that some of these lynx-eyed, crafty newshounds might have known him by sight during a former somewhat spectacular incarnation and be keen enough to recognize him. One of the New York men, however, succeeded in cornering him in the barn, having been informed by the grim Janet that Mrs. Smith was unable to see anyone and that she herself refused to answer impertinent questions.

"Say, look here, bo," said Piggy confidentially, "call it off, will you? We ain't done nothin' to nobody, an' we ain't got nothin' to tell. Poor Mrs. Smith's been all in, anyhow, ever since he died, an' this thing's made her sicker. What's the use o' draggin' her into it?"

"Why did Scott have her house searched, then?"

"Search me! Because she's the only stranger around here, I guess. Or else the old goat's batty. He hunted in every closet an' under all the beds an' everything, an' didn't find nothin'. That oughter be enough. He could buy an' sell her three times over, an' maybe he thinks his money gives him a right to walk on her—er maybe he thinks a woman can't do nothin' to get back at him. But you take it from me that if Horatio Smith was alive—"

"Horatio Smith, eh? Came from Seattle, didn't you? Was he well known out there?"

"Not so very. Had his friends, o' course, but he was a quiet sort o' guy. Never mixed around much. Used to read a lot an' he was awful fond of her."

"Who were his friends there?"

"Aw, come off! I ain't goin' to set no dogs on them. What you guys got against her, anyhow? Can't you let the poor thing have a little peace? She's got trouble enough now, without all this."

"Nixon saw her the other day and recognized her."

"He did not! Jonesy, down at the store, told me all about the same day. Nixon said she looked like some friend o' his, so Jonesy told him who she was—where she come from an' everything—an' Nixon said she couldn't be the one. That's all there is to that. Go an' ask Jones yourself—or Nixon, either."

The reporter had already interviewed Jones. Fixing the other with a penetrating stare, he inquired suddenly:

"What does a young fellow like you dye his hair for?"

The heart of Percival Galahad Brazenose turned three complete somersaults before settling down to a rate approaching two hundred a minute, but his steady gray eyes never wavered and his grin looked humorous.

Combing Won't Rid Hair of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon, apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and it never fails to do the work. —Adv.

Quicksands of Love

BY ADELE GARRISON

AT Mary Harrison's outburst in defence of Jack Leslie I felt as if someone had just struck me a stunning blow. For only too well I realized what her angry words meant. She would not have become so excited over a fancied slight to a stranger.

The cabaret dancer must have made frequent opportunities to see her and talk to her since the morning of their accidental encounter in the park, when Mrs. Baker, the mysterious fourth-floor lodger, had swooned at Mary's feet. I paid a mental tribute to his acumen, even as I raged impotently at his audacity and wickedness. He had managed to make her a partisan of his own and to shake her faith in Philip Veritzen's artistic supremacy—surely no mean accomplishments for the short time in which he had known her.

The time had come for drastic action concerning the cabaret dancer. I saw that clearly and regretted keenly that Dicky was out of reach. He loathed so deeply the man whom he had dubbed the "capering cockroach" that I knew he would have found some means of frightening him away from Mary's vicinity. But Dicky was hundreds of miles away, busied with a commission so important that nothing but an issue of life or death must be permitted to disturb him. It was of no use to appeal to Philip Veritzen. The discovery that his protege had listened to detrimental accounts of him from the lips of so despicable a scoundrel as Jack Leslie, and one who had caused such havoc in his own life, would precede by but a few moments his curt severance of all relations with Mary.

Young Veritzen Not the Man

There was no other man sufficiently interested in Mary to whom I could turn for aid in thwarting the sinister schemes of the night club dancer, and that they were sinister I could no longer doubt although I had no clue to the nature of his plans. Whatever was to be done was "strictly up to me," in Dicky's parlance. And because I had no knowledge of Jack Leslie, no acquaintance with anyone who knew him, there was but one avenue of approach to the problem, and that lay through Mary.

"No acquaintance with anyone who knew him." My thoughts echoed back to me with an interrogation point attached. I remembered that I had met and talked with Noel Veritzen, only son of the great producer, but disinherited and estranged from his father because of the treachery of Jack Leslie. I made a swift resolve to summon the young man at my first opportunity and enlist his aid in banishing Leslie from Mary's life. Then as quickly I rescinded the resolve. I remembered the sensitive face and the apparently frail physique of young Veritzen, and the brutality which Jack Leslie had exhibited toward him the night in the restaurant when Dicky had intervened and invited the young musician to our table. Any contest between the two young men would be altogether too one-sided.

Was Mary a Thoroughbred?

No, I must deal with this situation myself, and the only angle from which I could approach it would be an appeal to Mary's common sense and generous soul. Yet, how was I to frame it without incurring the contemptuous belief of the young girl, who like her contemporaries, made a fetish of despising anything that smacked of sentiment?

I decided that a bit of severity would not be amiss. She could not be much angrier than she was already, and I knew that once her first paroxysm of wrath had passed her sense of fair play would assert itself. It was that string which I planned to twang first.

"Mary!" I said sharply after a long and uneasy pause following her outburst [illegible] take back the opinion I always have held of you that you were a thoroughbred, with fair play one of your tenets."

Football Can't Cough Off Gridiron Challenge of Ohio State Eleven

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Ohio State has returned to the football foreground with a challenge that cannot be coughed off.

The gridiron clinic maintained by Dr. Jack Wilce has thrown a severe cramp into Big Ten activities this season and left a dull, throbbing pain as the memento of the Buckeyes only appearance in the East this year. On the campus at Columbus, there is talk of the days of Chick Harley and a return of the triumphs of 1920 and 1921. And not without reason. After two games that could be classed only as hors d'oeuvres for the buxsom Buckeye appetite, the Ohioans have taken Columbia, Iowa and Chicago on successive Saturdays.

A schedule that has provided no soft spots since Oct. 9, when the Buckeyes left the mark of their cleats on Ohio Wesleyan, still contains two tough morsels, including Michigan, an outfit that is nobody's throat lozenge this year.

To meet this menu, Dr. Wilce has a hefty line that is able to spot its opponents several pounds and still out-charge them and a backfield that is full of power. Robin Bell, in addition to playing a commendable end, is a good kicker and passer. What do you want?

The Buckeye forwards have learned how to carry through a thrust that smothers many an offensive before it is well under way.

Big Ed Hess, all-American guard last season, has shown no signs of abating his practice of smacking down ambitious young halfbacks. He is not lonely in his prowess. Cox and Meyer on the left flank and Rowan at right wing are deserving of consideration, although they may not get a tumble from eastern all-American pickers.

Wilce has a balanced threat in the backfield. Captain Marty Karow is a sledge hammer fullback. Marek is the same type. Clark is a smart field marshal, passer and runner. Freddy Grim is as neat a stepper in a broken field as one might wish. Byron Eby and Kruskamp both are plungers and fast on off-tackle slices.

In his line coaching and interference running, Wilce again has excelled. More, he has given the Buckeye alertness—smartness on the field. Mistakes are costly against the scarlet and grey.

The contests against Michigan and Illinois, calling out the best of this staunch line defensive, and giving this backfield a chance to show its deftness in building up an aerial game and in gaining ground, will prove as interesting spectacles as November gridirons will provide.

Comparisons with the East are lacking, save for the sweet drubbing given Columbia. Ohio State had but one inter-sectional match this season. That, it would seem, was a good break for the East.

Gossip and Guesses in the World of Sport

By Pat Murphy

OLD Dame Rumor has Tris Speaker "through as leader" at Cleveland. This has been an annual occurrence since the gray fox took charge of things baseballic in Ohio's metropolis. No change is likely at Cleveland, although there seems to be an epidemic of managerial ousting since the close of the season, and Speaker and Cobb may be among those whose heads will fall.

LOCAL sporting interest now turns to boxing and basketball. The Isaly Dairies, winners of last winter's state tournament at Columbus, are preparing to put a strong team in the field again this year. Practice is being held in the Star Auditorium several nights each week, and Coach Doug Torrence is confident that he will have a team as good, if not better, than the one he led to success last season.

The Marion Athletic Association is preparing to hold boxing shows this winter. The boxing committee already has lines out for a couple of good boys to open the season. It is likely that the first show of the season will be held soon at the Orpheum theater. An effort is being made to bring two of the best little boys in the state here for the opening. If response to this program shows that Marion wants fights this winter, some good cards will be arranged during the indoor season.

MONTE MUNN, the Nebraska giant who is being groomed by Bob Fitzsimmons' old trainer, Dan Hickey, for the heavyweight championship, is an oddity in the sport world. A star athlete during his college days at the University of Nebraska, he turned to politics when he finished school. He was a member of the Nebraska legislature when Tony Stecher, brother-manager of the champion wrestler, suggested that he take up the ring as a means of livelihood. Monte resigned and came east under the wing of Hickey. Careful matchmaking is ballyhooing him into a shot at the laurels now worn by Tunney.

A peculiar thing about this is the fact that the man who talked him into politics for the ring is the arch-enemy of the coterie who manipulated his brother, Wayne, into the heavyweight wrestling championship. Wayne "won" the wrestling title from Ed Lewis only to lose it to the timeworn Stanislaus Zbyszko, who in turn lost it to Joe Stecher, who had been given the run-around by Lewis ever since the latter had held the title.

THURSDAY night at the Coliseum in the state fair grounds at Columbus, Suzanne Lenglen, Mary Browne, Vincent Richards and Paul Peret, the quartet who represent the latest effort of "Cash and Carry" Pyle to professionalize sporting celebrities, will present the first pro tennis matches in this part of the country. Columbus papers are predicting a sell-out for this appearance of the heretofore simon-pure amateurs.

It is doubtful if professional tennis will ever be popular. These four players will "clean-up" while the novelty lasts, but will the public pay to see them repeat the performance next year, and for years after? Tennis is not furnishing stars with the frequency that baseball, football and basketball does. Nor is the game so generally played. Therefore it is a safe conclusion that the success of Suzanne and the rest of the quartet will be of much shorter duration than that of "Red" Grange and others whom Pyle has promoted.

"Heads-Up" Tactics Win for Harding High 11

Touchdowns Direct Result of Blocking Bucyrus Kicks in Shadow of Goal Posts

Victory Is Fourth for Locals in as Many Years; Crawford County Team Secures Lone Tally with 30-Yard Drive

SPLASHING and sliding through mud and water ankle-deep on the North Lane Street field at Bucyrus, Harding High gridders Saturday twice waded across the goal line of their ancient foes, defeating the Crawford County eleven for the fourth consecutive time in as many years and winning a North Central Ohio League contest for the first time this season.

Determination to win and "heads-up" football on the part of the Marionites caused the downfall of the husky, confident Bucyrus team.

Before the game was three minutes old, the locals had blocked a Bucyrus punt and recovered the ball within eight yards of their opponents' goal line. Unable to score on three plays, Born attempted a placekick from the 30-yard line but the oval fell short of the bar.

A few minutes later when Kish of Bucyrus again punted near his goal line, the entire Harding line broke through and blocked the kick, recovering on the three-yard line. The first touchdown was chalked up when W. Merchant "sneaked" through center for six points.

In the second quarter the same act was staged and Bob Merchant recovered the ball for Harding on the five-yard line following a blocked punt. W. Merchant again sneaked across for a touchdown.

In the final period when Monnett and Kish, star backfield Bucyrus men began a march down the field and splashed to within five-yards of the Harding goal line, the local eleven displayed determination and fighting spirit never before shown in its previous battles this season. With four chances to skid across the white line for a touchdown, the heavy Bucyrus backs met unconquerable opposition. Two punches brought the oval to the two-foot line but Kish was stopped cold in his next two lunges against the Harding wall. The ball went to Marion on downs.

With the pigskin in its possession on its own goal line, the local team met another crisis with unfailing determination. Standing 10 yards behind his own goal posts, Tuttle, Harding right half, received the slippery oval from center, fumbled, recovered, and booted the ball 35 yards out of danger. At least five Bucyrus men downed him a fraction of a second later.

Bucyrus' one six points came in the final period when Monnett and Kish opened another attack and scored on a combination of runs and line plays beginning at the 30 yard line. The placekick for the extra point was blocked.

Thus, the Red and Black grid warriors of Harding High, meeting an old enemy who was doped to win by a comfortable margin, out-played and out-fought the Bucyrus' eleven, turning in a well earned victory and continuing the "jinx" held by a Marion football team over a Crawford County outfit.

ASHLAND WINS FROM SHELBY

McDowell High of Ashland furnished the season's upset of the North Central Ohio League Saturday by handing Shelby High its first league defeat, 7 to 6.

Sweeping half the length of the field in the first few minutes Kennedy, Shelby left half, crashed over the line for a touchdown, but Yetzer's drop-kick was blocked.

Ashland drove for three first downs, Johnson lunging through the line for a touchdown in the second period. Fouts placekicked for the winnig point.

In the last minute of play, Johnson of Ashland saved a touchdown then he leaped into the air and came down with a pass intended for Yetzer, who had a clear field.

Football Casualties Being Counted Today

MICHIGAN AND PENN DEFEATED IN SURPRISES

Hidden Ball Attack Hides Hopes of Any Touchdown

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Nov. 1—Beset by minor tragedies for some weeks in advance, it remained for Saturday to contrive that college football be overtaken by the great horror and today the dead and dying were being sorted, identified and piled in neat, orderly heaps for immediate delivery to the coroner's office. Some of the victims were so badly mangled that they may have to throw them away.

Exhibit A is the University of Michigan, bean ideal of the Western Conference and touted as the greatest in the land. The Wolverines' hope of a national championship died a horrible death at the Baltimore Stadium when the Navy won 10 to 0 and gave pause to the conference idea that the East is the official know-nothing of college football.

Exhibit B is the University of Pennsylvania, another team with championship notions which took its hidden ball attack to Illinois and lived to regret the incident.

Pennsylvania was very successful with the hidden touchdown and lost 3 to 0. The two victims may survive, but they will never be the same.

And the Others

Neither will Southern California, which dropped out of the coast race by losing to Stanford, virtually a national habit. The Trojans thought they had this one in the bag, but they couldn't stand up under Stanford's late rush. They were the third unbeaten team to have their record ruined during the day.

A fourth was West Virignia, a fifth Cornell, a sixth Wisconsin and a seventh Washington and Jefferson. The later was ten points up on Lafayette at the end of the first quarter, but the Maroons came with a rush in the last two periods and won, 16 to 10. Cornell also was nine points better than Columbia in the first half, but unfortunately, it proved to be seventeen points worse in the second half and that indubitably was that. It was Columbia's first victory over Cornell in something like 20 years. Another victor coming from the surreptitious rear was Minnesota, which beat Wisconsin, 16 to 10.

West Virginia took one on the jowl from Missouri, champ of the Valley Conference and did so in a manner most convincing. Three touchdowns were scored as a result of intercepted passes and a fourth followed a sustained march down the field. It was Missouri's first chance to play on a gridiron that had nothing in common with a sponge and it made the most of the situation.

No Excuses

Neither Michigan nor Pennsylvania has an excuse coming. The former played unintelligent and uninspired football, so casual in fact that men like Friedman and Oosterbaan will have quite a time living the business down.

Friedman's passing game was without deception and, if he had a running attack to work with, he never gave it a chance. Oosterbaan, very bored or something, seldom was off his feet during the game. However, the whole Michigan team would have had to be very good to beat the Navy, which displayed great football.

As for Pennsylvania, it was beaten on the run of the game, which means that Illinois played like the superior of the two. It obviously was.

The downfall of the championship pretenders, listed above, left the following in possession of the field:

Brown, the Army, the Navy, Lafayette, Missouri, Ohio State, Stanford, Alabama, Notre Dame, Kansas Aggies, Tennessee, Boston College, Holy Cross, New University and Oregon Aggies.

Rather studiously I have refrained

CANADIAN HOCKEY LEAGUE OPENS SCHEDULE NOV. 15

London, Ont., Nov. 1—The Canadian Professional Hockey league will open its schedule on Monday, November 15, with Hamilton playing in Windsor and London in Niagara Falls.

An 80 game schedule, which gives each team 16 home games, has been adopted.

The New York Americans of the National Hockey League will train at Niagara Falls and will hold joint workouts with Gene Frasers Canadian Professional league sextet.

Although hampered at the start by a lack of promising material, Coach Hollingbery appears to have developed an A 1 football tam at Washington State College.

BALL SEASON CLOSES TONIGHT

Bacon To Manage Athletics Again Next Season

Monday night at Eagles' Hall, the 1926 baseball season will be brought to an official close. The members of the Marion Athletic Association are giving a banquet to the players of the Marion Athletics who won the semi-professional championship of [illegible] this year, and to a list of invited guests.

Francis Bacon will manage the team again next year and is expected to have at least as strong a team as he had this year. Several new players will be in the lineup. Some of those who wore Marion uniforms this past year will go up, and others not as fast will be brought in to take their places.

Plans for a [illegible] league with Marion as a member have been broached to the management of the Athletics. This matter will be gone into thoroughly during the stove league season. If the fans of Marion want league ball they will probably have it, but there is a question whether league ball will be as popular as the plan of bringing different teams each week.

The defeat in the Yale game was a sad blow for Dartmouth football followers as it was the first game lost by the Green since 1925.

MANSFIELD GETS UNDISPUTED HOLD ON FIRST PLACE

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventures

BY JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

[illegible] is going to be winter I wish it [illegible] be winter right. It was cold Sat[illegible] night and all day Sunday but it [illegible] snow, and we might as well have [illegible] it is going to be cold.

[illegible] aunt washed my face so clean yes[illegible] to go to Sunday school with that [illegible] more cold got to my face than to [illegible] of anyone else in the bunch. [illegible]father says that Eskimo kids never [illegible] their faces washed and they get [illegible] a coating of dirt and grease from [illegible] fat meat that it is a protection [illegible]em all winter, and in the spring [illegible] aunt or someone cracks the dirt and [illegible] it off like peeling a hard boiled [illegible]. If their winter's wasn't so cold [illegible] want to be an Eskimo and [illegible] have my face washed and live on [illegible] pie.

[illegible] morning it was colder yet, and [illegible]. Jubilee don't like to be let [illegible] by the rope in his teeth on cold [illegible]. My grandfather said this [illegible] while we were feeding our faces [illegible] this is Thanksgiving month and my [illegible] asted me what I was thankful [illegible] I said I was thankful that my [illegible] was not born a girl, and they all thought that was a funny thing to be thankful for [illegible] my [illegible] asked me why, and I said one aunt was enough for a fella to have, then they all laughed but my aunt, and she said it wouldn't take more than two [illegible] to [illegible] me, and I swiped two pancakes for Jubilee and skun out before I got blamed for something.

We went down to the pond and it is froze over hard and we busted a hole in it with a rock to get a drink, and the water came up through the hole when we stood around it and made a big puddle on the ice. Nibs pushed his feet against the Lost Boy of Friday's feet and they went out from under him and then we got him by the feet and drug him all over the pond on the seat of his pants, and he was hollering giddap and having a good time, and then when it was time for us to start for school we pulled him through the wet place and when we got to school the seat of his pants was froze so hard it crackled, and the teacher made him stand by the radiator and the ice melted and ran down in his shoes, and when she told him to take his seat he walked so funny that I had to stay in for laughing out loud.

Daily Bedtime Story

BY HOWARD GARIS

Uncle Wiggily and His Friends

Uncle Wiggily hopped into a toy store, the window of which had hanging in it some false faces of different animals, clowns, elves, fairies, Indians, and so on.

"Have you the false face of a fox?" asked the rabbit gentleman, speaking to the little mouse gentleman who kept the store.

"Well, mostly my false faces are sold," was the answer. "You know last night was Hallowe'en, but, on account of it being Sunday, lots of the boys and girls had their fun Saturday night."

"Well, now that it is Monday night, I'm going to have my Hallowe'en fun, though I may be a bit late," said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. "See if you have the false face of a fox."

There happened to be just one left, under the counter, and the little mouse gentleman handed it to Mr. Longears, who put it on over his own rabbit face, which, of course, he couldn't take off.

"Do I look like a fox?" asked the bunny, making his voice sound rough and as if he were down cellar with a cold.

"Your face looks like a fox," said the mouse, "but you are hardly tall enough."

"Then I'll put on some stilts!" said the bunny. "Quick, if you please, sell me a pair of stilts for my hind legs. I am going to walk on them when I pretend I am a fox."

When he had strapped on the stilts and looked out through the eye holes of the fox false face Mr. Longears asked the mouse:

"Now, how do I seem? Would you take me for a bad chap?"

"I'd think you were a fox if you had a larger tail," was the answer. "As it is, with that little tail of yours, no bigger than a thumb—why you wouldn't fool a baby!"

"Dear me. What shall I do for a tail?" asked Uncle Wiggily. And then, as he looked around the store, he saw a big dusting brush which the mouse used to sweep up his crumbs of cheese, and the bunny said: "I'll fasten that brush on for my tail." And when he had done this, he looked very much like a fox.

"On whom are you going to play tricks?" asked the mouse store-keeper.

"Hush! Don't say a word, but come along with me if you want to see some fun!" whispered Uncle Wiggily. So, wearing the false face and the rest of his masquerade costume, he hopped out, followed by the mouse. It was getting on to evening time.

All of a sudden the Woozie Wolf—the real one and not a Hallowe'en fellow—came loping along, and when he saw what he thought was a fox the Wolf stopped and growled:

"Good evening, Mr. Fox. Have you seen Uncle Wiggily this evening? Most likely he will be out having Hallowe'en fun and we can get him. Have you seen him?"

"Yes," answered the bunny gentleman, speaking as nearly like the fox as he could. "And so have you!"

"I have? I have seen Uncle Wiggily?" snarled the Woozie Wolf. "What do you mean? Nonsense! I haven't seen him at all!"

"Oh, yes you have!" chuckled the bunny. "You have seen him. He is right around here."

"Around here? Around where?" howled the Wolf, jumping this way and that, all excited. "I don't see him!"

"Why don't you use your eyes?" asked the fox-bunny. And just then the Bob Cat came mewing along and asked:

"What's the matter?"

"Why, Mr. Fox says Uncle Wiggily is around here and that I have seen him," snarled the Wolf.

"So you have and so Mr. Bob Cat has seen him!" laughed Uncle Wiggily behind the false face of the fox. "Oh, how silly you chaps are!" he chuckled, and the rabbit laughed so hard that his dusting brush tail fell off.

"Do I look like a fox?" asked the bunny.

"Look!" howled the Wolf, pointing to it.

"I see it!" mewed the Bob Cat. "That isn't Mr. Fox at all! Get him! It's Uncle Wiggily!" But as the bad chaps leaped toward him, the rabbit gentleman took off his stilts and threw them. The sticks tangled up in the legs of the Wolf and Bob Cat, tripping them. Before they could get up Uncle Wiggily had run safe home to his bungalow.

"Ha! Ha!" he laughed as he popped into bed and pulled the covers over his head. "I had some jolly Hallowe'en fun!" And if the shoe string doesn't tie itself in a hard knot so the pussycat can't make it into a cradle, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Bunty's numbers.

BISHOPS READY FOR WITTENBERG

Springfield Eleven Will Play Ohio Wesleyan Saturday

[illegible], Nov. 1—The Bishops came through Saturday's game here with [illegible] good physical condition. No [illegible] casualties were added to the [illegible] injured—although several [illegible] yet recovered from old [illegible] be ready for Wesleyan's [illegible] Saturday against the Lutherans.

[illegible] of the warriors reported at Edwards field early Monday and were [illegible] thoroughly by Tommy Tyler, [illegible] coach. Practically all of the [illegible] to report for duty in the [illegible]. Kotsky, regular tackle, is [illegible] and Bob Tilton, the other [illegible] still treating a limb injury. [illegible] quarterback is in good shape [illegible] Blickle who broke a nose [illegible] the Northern tilt, will be [illegible] heavy duty against the [illegible] team.

Wittenberg is to invade the Methodist [illegible] stronghold as the headliner of the [illegible] Wesleyan homecoming celebration. Red and black followers will [illegible] Delaware Saturday in great [illegible]. Wittenberg is looked upon [illegible] a worthy rival, a team which [illegible] up a great fight. The keen [illegible] which has existed between [illegible] schools for many years will [illegible]. Wesleyan is not forgetting [illegible] Wittenberg athletes threw [illegible] into the Bishop camp last year [illegible] great playing—and there is [illegible] concern here over the showing [illegible] the Lutherans made against [illegible] at Columbus this season. [illegible] team that can make two touchdowns against this year's Buckeye [illegible] is to be feared by any eleven. [illegible] is trying to put his best machine [illegible] in shape for the tussle here Saturday. The tilt will be Wesleyan's [illegible] Buckeye Association encounter. The Bishops luckily kept their record [illegible] last week-end by staving off [illegible]. Great preparations are going [illegible] here to make the day one of great [illegible]. Delaware is making plans to welcome the crowd that is coming from Springfield. Wesleyan is not going to lose sight of the Wittenberg visitors in spite of the returning Wesleyan alumni. Every effort will be made to have the Lutherans feel at home in Delaware.

from [illegible] Yale among the casualties although a 33 to 0 defeat by the Army hardly can be said to come under the head of a minor injury. However, the Bull Dog has not been without defeat this season and, if he didn't [illegible] realize this before, he knows it now.

[illegible] again fully demonstrated its [illegible] by storming through Dartmouth [illegible] to 0 decision without using a [illegible] for the second time this season. Alabama re-asserted its intention of [illegible] the southern title by winning from Missouri State, 24 to 0. Ohio State served due notice on Michigan, of what may transpire later by disposing of Chicago, 18 to 0.

Notre Dame won another "convincer" this time from Georgia Tech, 12 to 0. New York University, trailing by three points going into the final period, [illegible] its record by running amuck through Fordham for 27 points. Holy Cross also came from behind in beating Dayton, 20 to 7, and Boston College was scored on for the first time, [illegible] from West Virginia Wesleyan, 27 to [illegible] while Kansas Aggies defeated Arkansas, 16 to 7, and Oregon Aggies were held to a surprisingly low margin of one field goal by Idaho.

The one-defeat class had a bad day. Nebraska uncovered some of the power [illegible] against Missouri by [illegible] to 6 from Iowa State, a [illegible] Missouri could beat by only [illegible]. Other one defeat teams [illegible] won were Syracuse, Princeton, [illegible], Vanderbilt, Auburn, Carnegie Tech, Columbia, Geneva, Illinois, Northwestern and Washington, among [illegible].

The Zipp Operating Co. avers that Miss Garcelon was injured through her own carelessness and negligence.

LIMA PAPER INDORSES JUDGE C. L. JUSTICE

Recommends Marion Man for Court of Appeals Bench

Common Pleas Judge Charles L. Justice, Democrat, who is a candidate for the office of judge of the Court of Appeals, received the following editorial comment in Sunday's issue of the Lima News:

"The most important court to Ohioans so far as the great majority of litigation is concerned is the Court of Appeals, of their respective districts. This is true because very few cases, only those involving constitutional questions or matters of wide public interest are admitted to the Supreme Court making the Court of Appeals the tribunal of the last resort.

"For this reason it is essential that voters choose good men for the appellate bench. The Third Judicial District, of which Allen County is the largest unit, will elect a judge to this bench at the coming election. It is highly important that a man well fitted for the place be chosen, and in recommending we have no hesitancy in recommending Judge Charles L. Justice, Common Pleas judge of Marion County.

"Judge Justice has had 20 years of active law practice and would take to the Court of Appeals qualities that should be found there. He is fitted to take his place alongside such eminent jurists as Judges Phil M. Crow and Kent W. Hughes, a combination of which the Third Judicial District might well be proud."

INDUSTRIALS STEADY IN DULL MARKET MONDAY

Proximity of Election Restrains Principal Speculative Issues

New York, Nov. 1—Industrial stocks were steady in a dull market today. Outside participation in all of the principal speculative markets was restrained by the proximity of the election and the forthcoming holiday and once again professional activity accounted for the bulk of transactions in all stocks.

Since no confirmation of any of the confused reports and rumors relative to the Nickel Plate consolidation was possible, the railroad stocks did not figure prominently in the activities of the day.

Sales of pig iron in this city and Ohio showed a considerable increase in the [illegible], more than 30,000 tons having been engaged for shipment last week, against 12,500 tons in the week before. Buyers were not inclined to haggle over prices.

When completed, the September earnings reports of the railroad systems will make favorable reading for the stockholders, but the last three months of the year are expected to pile up record-breaking net incomes for the whole post war period. It is for this reason that Wall-st looks for the rails to lead the next upward movement in stock prices. Call money was in good supply at 4½ per cent, unchanged from last week, though funds were available at 4 per cent in the outside market.

DIVIDEND DECLARED

WAKE up your sleeping youth! Look younger! Be younger! Age has little to do with your looks or your feelings. It's the condition of your blood that counts!

And blood will tell! It tells in a hundred ways. If your system is starving for rich, red blood, you may look and feel old at thirty. But if you build up the red-blood-cells with S. S. S. you'll quickly see the wrinkles fade away—the sagging pouches give way to firm, solid flesh—and the fresh, glowing beauty of youth take the place of a skin sallow and disfigured with blemishes.

Rich, red blood means youth, vim and energy! S. S. S. helps Nature build red-blood-cells by the millions. For generations S. S. S. has been keeping people looking and feeling young.

Fresh, cleansing, purifying, rich, red blood that S. S. S. helps Nature build, nourishes every muscle, organ and tissue of the body. Pimples, blotches and blackheads disappear. Boils, eczema and rashes dry up. Your face—your body—your whole being takes on the look and power of youth. Wake up your system with S. S. S. Build red blood and you rebuild youth! Get S. S. S. from any druggist. The larger bottle is more economical.

FIREMEN ANSWER FIVE ALARMS OVER WEEK-END

Loss at C. E. Curtis & Co. Funeral Home, $200; McClung Damage, $500

Prospects of October going down in history as an exceptionally dull month for the Marion Fire Department literally and figuratively "went up in smoke" Saturday and Sunday when the firemen were called out by five alarms.

These calls, received between 3:10 Saturday afternoon and 1:12 Sunday afternoon ran the total for the month up to 16, making it about the average October figure. Had the unusually busy two-day period not developed at the wind up, the total of fires during the last month would have ranked as the lowest of the last decade.

Only one of the five calls called the firemen to a blaze where the loss was serious. This was at the home of Z. W. McClung, located on the Upper Sandusky-rd near Crystal Lake park. When Mr. Clung arrived at his home about 10 o'clock Saturday night he found the partition between the dining room and kitchen burning. Firemen from No. 3 station on Mark-st were summoned and extinguished the flames with chemicals. The damage is estimated at about $500. The McClung residence is located outside the corporation limits and as a consequence the loss is not included in the city's record of fire losses.

Overheated Furnace

An overheated furnace ignited the floor at the undertaking quarters and funeral home of C. E. Curtis & Co. 267 E. Center-st, at noon, Sunday and resulted in a call for the firemen at Station No. 1. The damage amounted to about $200 and is covered by insurance.

At 3:10 Saturday afternoon departments No. 2 and No. 3 were called to the home of W. B. Whitehead, 357 Senate-st when occupants became alarmed by smoke which filled the building. Firemen discovered that the smoke was due to a defect in the chimney flue and that the structure was not on fire.

False Alarm

Shortly before 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon some person passing the home of John MacIver, 300 Linden-pl, noticed a heavy cloud of smoke hovering over the roof and thinking that the place was afire, sent in an alarm to department No. 1. It was found that the smoke had come from the chimney and was prevented from rising by the unusually heavy atmosphere.

The third call, which called out firemen from station No. 1 shortly after 1 o'clock Sunday morning, came from box No. 66 and proved to be a false alarm.

While the number of calls received by the fire department during the month was above the average, the total loss was only about $[illegible] which is regarded as exceptionally low. The $500 damage at the McClung home and $[illegible] loss earlier in the month when the H. B. Smith home burned down north of Marion are not included in the city's total, as both places are outside the corporation limits.
